WEBB BROS.

T MILLION WOMEN WORK EVERY DAY.

business of getting a husband has been superseded by the business of earning money. That is the story of millions of women, and the story of the Woman's Home Companion as they do it. It says in part: "Late as fifty years ago a girl's life was marked by a certain simple purpose. Her business was to get a husband! Never mind what kind. Just get him! It was a terrible thing to be called an 'old maid.' Also, aside from the ridicule of spinsterhood, there was the added fact that it involved dependency on some tolerant relative. Who doesn't remember the 'old maid' aunts of our childhood, always busy, flitting over the house in cap and shawl, and getting their happiness in the happiness of others. Why, they were old women at forty! "What else was there for them to do except to marry? The professions and trades were closed to them, business had not yet opened its doors, and the stage was regarded as not being 'quite nice.' Woman's one place was 'the home,' and if she didn't have one, that was her fault.

"Less than fifty years ago! Today eight million women are at work, figuring in every department of human endeavor. There are more than four hundred occupations, I believe, and women are to be found in all except railroad engineers and telegraph line-men. No avenue is closed to them, and society not only admits woman's right to a sane individuality, but encourages her in the development of her capabilities."

Miss Mildred Newton, vice president.

Miss Ethel Hall, secretary.

Miss Edith Tobias, treasurer.

Miss Myrtle McCullough, assistant teacher.

Miss Fay Driver, reporter.

On Friday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock the members of the Fidelis class were entertained by their teacher, Miss Louise Batte, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Batte. After a few musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. M. A. Miller, we engaged in many different games. All through the evening the room was a scene of merry laughter. After some hours of pleasure we were invited into the dining room, where we were served iced tea and sandwiches. At a late hour we departed for our homes, each assuring our hostess of a delightful time. (MISS) FAY DRIVER, Reporter.
